block in which I was made to stand. The fever began to rise very quickly, but I continued to stand with this fever on for some time. In the meantime a very strange incident took place, ! was just thinking of sending word, regarding my ever, when I suddenly seemed to hear a clanking noise coming from the direction of the big iron door, leading to our corridor, and looked around and the door opened and two Europeans steped in. One of them I took for the jailor himself and the other seemed to appear to me, some-what like Dr. O'Neil, who was in the Alipore jail at the time when we were there. Dr. O'Neil, I thought, might have got transferred, to the Andaxnans and so came to see me. They asked, what the matter was with me, when they came near, and I told them that 1 had got fever, "Oh, you've got fever?'* and produced a doze of medicine, in a green coloured measure glass, as if they came ready prepared, from before-hand. * 'Take this medicine, this is quinine, and if you take it, it will do you good/* they said, but when they saw that I was going to take that medicine, without in the least suspecting anything wrong with it one of them shouted, "Stop ! don't take it; this is not quinine, but
